Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on July 21, 2005 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 3. Claims 26-31 and 37-39 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Okamura et al. (USPN 4,339,983).

In reference to claims 26-31, Okamura et al. discloses a stack (CD; figure 19) of hangers comprising: a plurality of hangers aligned parallel, along a single line, wherein an opening exists between each hanger; each hanger having a shoulder (13a, 13b) spaced from a web (9), the web (9) extending between a pair of legs (10a, 10b), and a barbed member (15a, 15b) extending out from each leg (10a, 10b); one or more shearable tabs (23) extending between, and attaching, adjacent ones of the plurality of hangers.

Regarding claims 37-39, Okamura et al. teaches hangers comprising: a web (9) and a pair of legs (10a, 10b) having a shoulder and extending in a direction perpendicular to the web (9); a barbed member (14a, 14b) extending out from each leg (10a, 10b); and one or more shearble tabs (23) extending between and attaching adjacent fastening elements.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. Claims 26-31 and 37-39 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Samson et al. (USPN 4,728,237) in view of Okamura et al. (USPN 4,339,983).

With respect to claims 26-31, Samson et al. discloses a hanger (40), used to install framing material, the hanger comprising: a web (41) extending between a pair of legs (42, 43) having a shoulder, in which the legs (42, 43) extend outwardly from the web (41) in a direction perpendicular to the web (41); and a barbed member extending out from each leg (42, 43). Although Samson et al. discloses a tab (41b) extending from the web (41) of the hanger (40), Samson et al. does not disclose one or more shearable tabs extending between an adjacent hangers. Okamura et al. teaches fastening elements comprising: a web (9) and a pair of legs (10a, 10b) extending in a direction perpendicular to the web (9), and a barbed member (14a, 14b) extending out from each leg (10a, 10b); and one or more shearble tabs (23) extending between and attaching adjacent fastening elements. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the hanger of Samson et al. to include the shearable tabs of Okamura et al., since Okamura et al. states in column 6 lines 5-21 that such a modification is known for the purpose of securing a series of elements to one another, thereby allowing the elements to be used in a continuous supply operation.

In reference to claims 37-39, Samson et al. discloses a hanger (40), used to install framing material, the hanger comprising: a web (41) extending between a pair of legs (42, 43) having a shoulder, in which the legs (42, 43) extend outwardly from the web (41) in a direction perpendicular to the web (41); and a barbed member extending out from each leg (42, 43).

Although Samson et al. discloses a tab (41b) extending from the web (41) of the hanger (40), Samson et al. does not disclose one or more shearable tabs extending between an adjacent hangers. Okamura et al. teaches fastening elements comprising: a web (9) and a pair of legs

(10a, 10b) extending in a direction perpendicular to the web (9), and a barbed member (14a, 14b) extending out from each leg (10a, 10b); and one or more shearble tabs (23) extending between and attaching adjacent fastening elements. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the hanger of Samson et al. to include the shearable tabs of Okamura et al., since Okamura et al. states in column 6 lines 5-21 that such a modification is known for the purpose of securing a series of elements to one another, thereby allowing the elements to be used in a continuous supply operation.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed July 21, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In response to applicant's argument that the hangers of Okamura et al. are not disclosed for use as frame hangers, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In a claim drawn to a process of making, the intended use must result in a manipulative difference as compared to the prior art. See In re Casey, 370 F.2d 576, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 312 F.2d 937, 939, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963).
